

Study (a dream I had in 1970)

I was standing on a hilltop along with the Apostles and the Savior, who was speaking at length. In dismay, I realized that his sermon was in Aramaic and thus completely unintelligible to me. But lo, when he came to the end of his discourse, the very last word he spoke was in English: "... reading", he said. And indeed, history clearly teaches us that it is only thru studying the written Gospels that we know of his words and his deeds; no other source—no person or writing or authority across the centuries—has proved to be sufficiently reliable regarding his teaching.
